

Marjorie Ginsburg, MPH
Center for Healthcare Decisions

Marge is founder and Executive Director of the Center for Healthcare Decisions, an independent nonprofit, nonpartisan organization. Established in 1994 (originally as Sacramento Healthcare Decisions), the Center is a leader in regional and statewide efforts to improve end-of-life care; promotes civic engagement in California for identifying healthcare priorities when resources are limited; and assists other states in developing processes for public participation.

She currently serves on NCQA's Committee on Performance Measurement and the boards of the Integrated Healthcare Association; Calif. Hospital Assessment & Reporting Task Force (CHART); Calif. Hospital Patient Safety Organization; Calif. Technology Assessment Forum; and the California Cooperative Healthcare Reporting Initiative.

She received an RN degree from the University of Maryland and a Masters of Public Health from University of California, Berkeley. Prior to moving to Sacramento in 1990, she spent 15 years in administration of community-based geriatric services in San Francisco.
